INTRODUCTION

This Information Resources Guide is a product of many phone calls, many minutes on "hold," many scannings of newsletters, much thumbing of directories and resource descriptions, and many words of many mouths. It is offered as a current—as of February 24, 1981—catalogue of information sources on the education of handicapped and gifted students.

The guide is comprehensive, but far from exhaustive. It was never intended to supplant the Information Please Almanac. Inclusion of agencies and organizations presupposes no endorsement by either ERIC or CEC.

Single texts are rarely cited. When documents are represented, they have been chosen for their multi-source content.

The format of the guide is designed to allow for revision to keep up with the field: it is very much a "working copy." Should you have suggestions or items for inclusion, please let us know by completing one of the pages in the back and sending it to us.
